

2.2 Independence: The Cornerstone of Legislative Auditing

Independence, the state of being impartial and free from bias and conflicts of interest, is the cornerstone of legislative auditing. Anything that impedes an honest, straightforward and sincere approach to the performance of an audit will reduce public confidence.

In Canada, Legislative Auditors enjoy the confidence of legislators and the public, and their independence is unquestioned. The fact that this independence is largely backed by legislation instills public confidence in the process. For instance, were a legislative audit to reveal significant matters critical to government, those matters would, by law, have to be made known to legislators and the public.

The legislation under which the Office of the Auditor General in Newfoundland and Labrador operates is the Auditor General Act. This legislation was assented to on 31 October 1991. The full text of the Auditor General Act is presented as Appendix I to this Report.

Professional Independence

To be independent in appearance as well as in fact, Legislative Auditors have been granted the freedom to act without undue direction or interference from government.

In practice, and subject to legislation and professional standards, this means that Legislative Auditors are able to determine when and how audits will be conducted and who will conduct them. It is they, for the most part, who have the licence to set the audit program for their jurisdictions, choosing the bodies to be audited and determining the nature and scope of audits to be conducted.

From a public accountability perspective, this degree of independence is crucial. Only in this way can there be assurance that all matters of importance are subject to thorough examination, no matter how the results might reflect on those being audited.

Personal Independence

Bolstering the independence of Legislative Auditors even further, legislators, not government, generally make decisions pertaining to the auditors' appointment, tenure, reappointment, remuneration and resourcing. Such decisions are overseen and approved by each Legislative Assembly as a whole.

In this Province, the House of Assembly has assured this independence by appointing the Auditor General for a 10 year non-renewable term as an Officer of the House of Assembly, with removal permitted only for cause or incapacity. As well, the Auditor General Act provides the Auditor General with immunity from legal action.

2.3 A Comprehensive Legislative Mandate

Being an Officer of the House of Assembly means being, above all, responsive to the Assembly's interests and wishes. This position as the Assemblies' Officer, combined with the responsibility to audit the whole of Government, is what sets Legislative Auditors apart from other audit professionals working in the public sector.

Whole of Government Mandate

The Auditor General is the only official channel through which the House of Assembly is regularly and consistently kept informed of Government's stewardship of public funds.

The House of Assembly has granted the Auditor General a “whole-of government” mandate, covering organizations as diverse as Government departments, agencies, commissions, boards and Crown corporations. In this way, the House of Assembly is assured of receiving the Auditor General's conclusions and recommendations for the entire Government entity, regardless of whether or not the executive branch of Government has hired a private sector auditor to audit a specific organization or program of Government.

Breadth of Audit Coverage

Legislative Auditors in Canada meet their auditing objectives by examining a very broad range of issues. These issues are not necessarily the same ones encountered in the private sector, mainly because of the basic differences between organizations in the private sector and those in government. For example, because government organizations have public policy objectives, the results of their operations cannot be assessed based solely on their financial statements.

Recognizing this distinction, Legislative Assemblies have broadened the scope of the work that Legislative Auditors may do to obtain the information they need to hold government accountable. This information focuses on the financial, operational and compliance with authorities performance of government organizations.
